Outcome:

Some of the notable outcomes of the event are as follows:

Increased Green Cover: The Tree Plantation Drive resulted in the addition of a substantial number of trees across our campus. This has significantly increased the green cover, contributing to a more visually appealing and environmentally friendly campus environment.

Environmental Awareness: The active involvement of the Vice Chancellor, deans, and faculties in the Tree Plantation Drive has generated awareness among the campus community about the importance of environmental conservation. This event has sparked conversations and discussions about sustainable practices, inspiring individuals to adopt eco-friendly behaviors in their daily lives.

Long-Term Impact: The trees planted during the event will continue to grow and thrive, providing long-term benefits to our campus and the surrounding environment. As these trees mature, they will offer shade, conserve soil moisture, and contribute to mitigating the effects of climate change.
