Topic: Essentials of Academic Research Writing

Objective of the Program:

Research objectives describe what your research is trying to achieve and explain why you are pursuing it. They summarize the approach and purpose of your project and help to focus your research. Your objectives should appear in the introduction of your research paper, at the end of your problem statement

Outline of the Program:

School of Law, Sandip University, organised Essentials of Academic Research Writing for Law students to make the students understand about academic research. Madam elaborated that research is the best tool universities have to create or enhance knowledge and facilitate learning. Additionally, most academic research helps solve different social and economic problems in the community surrounding the university where it originated. Academic research is a systematic process of studying a research problem or situation, where the intention is to identify facts that help solve the problem or deal with the situation. Academic research aims to generate new knowledge that improves social development. This research is one of the essential responsibilities of a faculty member working at an educational institution. Mainly this focuses on scientific discoveries, conducting studies into various aspects of life, with the eventual aim of developing a more in-depth knowledge of the subject. It's all about using new research techniques, creating studies into untouched areas of life, and giving us a better understanding of the world in which we live. There are four types of Academic Research:

Lastly vote of thanks was delivered by student and the guest speaker has agreed to be associated with School of Law to arrange such fruitful sessions in future as well. The session was a success and the discussion on the above topic was enriching to the budding lawyers of future.
